

Worpleston Primary School – Weekly Update

Dear Parents / Carers,

Thursday 24th October 2019

Here is our last weekly roundup before half term!

Thank you so much to all those who supported our 'Dress in Orange' day to support the charity Challengers. We know your donations will be much appreciated.

In English this week, we have been performing and writing nonsense poetry, with a focus on The Ning Nang Nong by Spike Milligan. After half term, we will be exploring our new text 'The Firework Maker's Daughter. When we explore this text, we will be focusing on using imaginative descriptions using alliteration, expanded noun phrases and similes.

In Maths, we have been using our skills in addition and subtraction to solve worded problems and to complete exciting investigations. After half term, we will be moving on and exploring multiplication. We will continue to deepen their understanding through different representations, problem solving and reasoning opportunities.

This week each class has been celebrating all the amazing pieces of homework the children have completed! We have been so impressed with the standard of work and the variety of the tasks. Well done to you all! The new homework passport is now available online so you can get started over the holidays.

Our next topic is 'Art Attack'. This is a history-based topic looking at art and artefacts from the Ancient Romans and Ancient Egyptians.

We hope you all have a restful and enjoyable half term.

Kind regards,

The Year 4 Team.
