

Worplesdon Primary School – Weekly Update

Dear Parents / Carers,

Friday 17th January

This week, we have been thoroughly impressed with the creativity and imagination the children have demonstrated in their writing. The children produced a diary entry from the perspective of Anne Frank, describing the events that happened that first day her and her family went into hiding. To complement our work in English, the children watched the BBC adaptation of Anne Frank's diary. Many children had questions about what happened to the Frank family when they were discovered, as this was where the film finished. We have discussed this in school as a year group but your child may have further questions. In addition, we thoroughly encourage further discussion if you wish to.

This half term in PE, our skills for development are based around hockey and handball. To ensure that all children get the best out of these sessions, can we remind you that your children need to have their PE kit in school every day.

Furthermore, it has been noted that an increasing number of children have not managed to bring their homework in on time, as well as not completing four reads each week. Please remind children to do this.

Thank you for your continued support; we hope you all have a lovely weekend.
