

Worplesdon Primary School – Weekly Update

Thursday 22nd October

Dear Parents / Carers,

This week, we began looking at a new text in English called The Tunnel. The children really enjoyed looking at the pictures within the text and making inferences about the characters; the author Anthony Browne is really good at hiding things in the images as I'm sure your child will tell you!

In maths, we concluded our unit of work on statistics and data. The children found it quite tricky understanding and interpreting different graphs, tables and charts but showed great perseverance with this. If you would like to support your child further with their maths, sharing timetables with them and interpreting them to extract information would be a great start – perhaps a bus timetable or an exercise class timetable.

Thank you to everyone for attending the virtual parents evening. It was lovely to chat with you and discuss your child's progress so far this year. We appreciate all that you are doing at home in supporting your child in these challenging times.

It has been a long and busy half term. Should you wish to do any school work over half term, just a reminder that the Autumn Term Homework Passport is online on Google Classroom and accessible to all.

We hope that you enjoy a well-deserved restful and relaxing half term break.
