

Worpleston Primary School – Weekly Update

Friday 28th January

Dear Parents / Carers,

Time flies when you're having fun – how is it only 2 weeks until half term! As there is lots to remember, here are some more updates on things that might require your attention:

- Our Residential – Thank you to those who attended our Q&A session this week. Please continue to send questions to us as they come to you. Please note, the deposit is due today so if you have any issues with this, please don't hesitate to contact us or the office. We really would love every child to come!
- Gingerbread – If you have any small decorations like smarties or sprinkles, please send them in to school with your child next week. Jays will be baking on Wednesday, Kestrels on Thursday and Wrens on Friday. Hopefully they won't have eaten it all before they get home.
- Christ's College Performance – We still have quite a few outstanding consent forms – please double check you have completed this as Shrek is definitely not a performance to be missed!

We have been overwhelmed with the children's positive response to their homework this week, with many of them asking for more! Largely, the children should be able to complete it independently, but they are more than welcome to ask us for help.

Finally, alongside all the excitement of baking, we will also be completing another set of mock SATs next week. As we said last time, these are absolutely nothing to worry about. After we have analysed the results, we will celebrate these with the children and with yourselves.

Enjoy the weekend,

Mr Clifton, Miss Bennett and Mr Djadali
